Melanie McKenna, Secwepemc, was this year's graduating student speaker at the FNHL graduation celebration on May 24, 2014. She shared how proud she was to be a NITEP graduate and how much she enjoyed her experience here.

"My time here at UBC has brought me friends and family and gave me a chance to connect back to my amazing home community and provided me with memories that will last in my heart for a lifetime."

NITEP - UBC's Indigenous Teacher Education Program

NITEP IS THE INDIGENOUS TEACHER EDUCATION PROGRAM AT THE UNIVERSITY OF BRITISH COLUMBIA. FOUNDED IN 1974, NITEP WAS DEVELOPED IN RESPONSE TO THE NEED EXPRESSED BY ABORIGINAL PEOPLE THROUGHOUT THE PROVINCE FOR A MORE RELEVANT AND EFFECTIVE TEACHER EDUCATION PROGRAM.

Students earn a Bachelor of Education degree (Elementary or Secondary) that builds upon Aboriginal identity and culture, while preparing and challenging them to be effective educators for band-operated, independent and public schools.

In addition to the Urban Centre on the UBC Vancouver campus, NITEP is also offered at field centres in Bella Bella, Duncan, and Kamloops. These centres allow students to maintain their connection to home and community while pursuing their education. NITEP Coordinators teach in the program and assist students with course planning, advising, and arranging for tutors. The cohort structure of NITEP allows students to bond and become a family as they experience the program together. Students have likened their experience to a canoe journey; the more they pull together the easier it becomes.

NEW NITEP AWARD

NITEP wishes to thank the generous donor who contributed funds to create the NITEP Aurora Award: An award of $3,000 in support of a student entering the first year of NITEP. Only one student receives the award each year. Preference will be given to a mature student in financial need. The award is made on the recommendation of NITEP.

OFFICE OF INDIGENOUS EDUCATION

The Master of Education (M.Ed.) cohort members featured in the photo on the right are completing their final capstone project this summer.

Their program focuses on Indigenous Knowledges & Pedagogies. The Department of Language and Literacy Education, and the Offices of Indigenous Education and External Programs and Learning Technology partnered to offer this cohort program.

The faculty advisors included Drs. Jan Hare and Jo-ann Archibald. Students and family members celebrated the conclusion of their program on July 10, 2014.
